There is a chart with #'s on bottom that may have not come out in text. One Natural Experience (O.N.E.) Overview • Ample growth capital: O.N.E. has a $16 million growth capital investment commitment from Catterton Growth Partners and Pepsi BottlingGroup (PBG) with the first tranche of funding already invested in the Company • Distribution muscle: With the strength of the PBG partnership and distribution agreement already in place, O.N.E. is well-positioned to rapidly expand distribution through PBG's national distribution network starting with its launch in Los Angeles and Miami • Differentiated supply lines to scale: O.N.E. has secured scalable access to supply through its secured relationship with Brazilian-based Amacoco, largest coconut water supplier recently acquired by PepsiCo. In addition, has an exclusive North American agreement with the largest producer in Indonesia. • Strong international interest: The Company has tremendous upside expansion potential given strong interest from large international strategic players • Stellar market performance: In a matter of three weeks, original coconut water product already highest performing SKU than any other PBG product in initial launch markets (outselling

Starbucks, Muscle Milk); #1 performing product in the alternative beverage category at WholeFoods (which includes ready-to-drink tea, energy drinks)CattertonPBGUpsideUpside +CaseCaseCaseInt'l Case2013 Gross

Tommy,

I remain hopeful that this will work, but also recognize that we have limited flexibility in this situation given our partnership with PBG and that the upside may not be enough for you. I have shown four scenarios in the attachment, ranging from Catterton's minimum underwriting (base case) to PBG's base case to two upside scenarios we all believe are possible. The estimated range of outcomes for the four scenarios implies the 50 bps would be worth between $1 million and $4.5 million.
